When you leave your job,
don't leave your money behind.

No matter when you leave your job, the money you accumulated in your employer's retirement plan while you were there — like in a 401(k) or 403(b) plan — can make the trip with you. Just be sure you don't lose it along the way.

Talk with an experienced agent today. They can help you get your money to its new destination.

When considering rolling over the proceeds of your retirement plan to another qualified option, one of several options is to leave the funds in your existing plan or transfer them into a new employer's plan. You should consult with the Human Resources department of the applicable employer to learn about the options available and any potential tax consequences, applicable fees and expenses. Depending on the state where you reside, assets held in a retirement plan may enjoy greater protection from creditors than in other types of tax-qualified vehicles. Neither New York Life, its subsidiaries, nor its agents can provide tax or legal advice, so please consult with a tax or legal advisor before taking any action. Services, investment options, fees, expenses, and liquidity in the new option under consideration may be different from your current retirement plan's.
